Take the first step

Any person who wants to be a Living Kidney Donor needs to contact the transplant office themselves either by phone 302-623-3866 or by filling out the application on the website at www.christianacare. org/kidneytransplant (click on "Interested in Living Donation").

The individual who needs a new kidney cannot apply for a person to be a donor. Each potential donor must apply on their own.

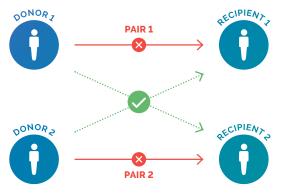

Advantages of Living Kidney Donation for the person receiving the kidney (recipient)

- Shorter wait time for kidney transplant because the person does not need to wait for a donor from the waitlist.
- Living donor kidneys work better.
- Living donor kidneys last longer.
- Convenience of planned surgery and recovery.
- If the donor is not a blood, tissue, or height/weight match to the intended recipient, paired kidney donation may be an option.

What is paired kidney donation?

- Paired Kidney Donor (PKD) Exchange is a list of people who need a kidney and potential donors.
 If a donor is not a good match for their intended recipient, they can donate to another person who is a match. The person they wanted to donate to will be receive a kidney from someone who is compatible.
- Even a compatible donor/recipient pair can participate in the Paired Kidney Donor (PKD)
 Exchange to gain the added donor lost wage/ travel reimbursements offered through the exchange program.
- An individual does not need to have an intended recipient to donate a kidney and save a life. When they donate into the exchange, they will receive a voucher for any individual who may require kidney transplant in the future.

Paired donation

Living Donor Surgery

There are about 5,000 living kidney donation surgeries done in the United States every year.

Risks: The transplant team will carefully explain and discuss risks specific to kidney transplant, in addition to the risks associated with any major surgery with the donor.

Recovery: Hospital stay is usually 2-3 days. Most donors return to full activity in 4-6 weeks depending on the activity level the donor will be returning to after surgery.

Life After Kidney Donation

Our transplant team monitors Living Kidney Donors for follow-up for two years after surgery.

It is important that people who are living kidney donors live a healthy lifestyle and have yearly physicals to stay healthy.

People who are living kidney donors can live full and active lives after donation.

Who pays for the donation?

The whole medical workup and surgery is paid for by the insurance of the person who receives the new kidney.

The person who receives the kidney, the donors, and their families may be able to have some lost wages, living, and travel expenses repaid.

Our Transplant Social Worker will look for the financial grants that are available.
